Imagining

Pam and I have four children, two boys and two girls. The younger brother, Collie, at the age of eight, told us one Sunday morning that he did not want to go to Church. After some thought, we allowed him to stay home that Sunday.

He didn't mention it all week, neither did we, but come Sunday morning he was dressed and ready for church. One week was a long time for our young son to realize it didn't feel right to stay home while his family went to church. He missed his friends, the children's choir, and Sunday School. It just didn't seem like a Sunday without going to church.

For the past 15 months, the Christian community has missed going to church. And like Collie, Sundays haven't been the same. Our children have missed their friends in Sunday School, hearing the stories of Jesus, and singing songs that help build their foundation of faith. The same goes for all ages in our churches. We miss celebrating communion, baptisms, and weddings. We've felt stifled in our ability to reach out to the lost, sick, and hurting. We've missed the joy of celebrating holy holidays together. This lack of connection has reminded us that the church isn't merely a building, the Church is the people who gather together with imagination and the strength of God's Call. Are you looking forward to getting back to church? Have you missed being together physically in worship with your brothers and sisters in the spirit of Christ? As soon as it's safe, I hope you and your family will be back with the family of God to, once again, enjoy the fellowship that can only be felt when two or more are gathered in His name.

Due to the Covid crisis, technology has begun playing an important role of encouraging us in our faith. Many believe it will continue to do so in the future, not as a replacement of the local church, but as an enhancement to help us reach people where they are. It's been exciting to see the church take bold steps using video, podcasts, and social media with open hearts and minds. Our Ministry's Board of Directors has added a new media team to imagine with us new ways to help keep our ministry relevant and in touch with your needs on your spiritual journey. As our churches are imagining how to serve our Lord in today's world, we as a Ministry of Evangelism in the Prophetic Spirit have begun creating video messages. These brief videos (3-5 minutes) include stories and music that will encourage you and your church to follow God's Call. We've titled this new series OUR CALL. I invite you to share them on social media, download and use them in your church, or in your church's videos.

May God bless and use our imaginations as we reach out to our world with the hope freely given. This is Our Call.

A Summer's Note from the KBC Ministry Board of Directors:

We, like many folks, are looking forward to some special time with our families this summer, a bit of rest and time to reflect of the goodness God gives us. We will use it well, as we remember those who have no vacations, or family with whom to share God's goodness. We prayerfully remember those whose needs are many due to the coronavirus that continues to be among us.
